

McLeod Health

The Choice for Medical Excellence

Continuing Medical Education Information from the South Carolina Medical Association

Receive Up to 24 Hours of FREE CME Credit!

CardioCareLive is hosting two CME programs presented by the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, online, at no cost to you. Sessions are approximately 1 hour each, and with the combined programs, these sessions offer a total of 24 AMA PRA Category 1TM credits, in addition to AAFP credit.

Sign-up up at www.CardioCareLive.com .

Programs:

In the first program, 12 sessions are being offered in three theme tracks on Atrial Fibrillation (co-sponsored by the Heart Rhythm Society), Interventional Cardiology (co-presented by the Cardiovascular Research Foundation), and Lipids Management. These sessions can be attended anytime on demand from now until December 30, 2011.

The second program consists of 12 sessions being offered in three theme tracks on Acute Coronary Syndrome (ACS), Heart Failure, and Diabetes. These sessions can be attended live, on July 27 from 9:00am to 7:00pm and July 28 from 11:00am to 4:00pm or anytime on demand from July 30, 2011 until January 30, 2012.